Brief Introduction

Nine years after Bitcoin came into the world in 2009, more than 1,000 cryptocurrencies have emerged in the world now, and countless exchanges have also released. We are not currently creating exchanges similar to other exchanges. We started the Ruby Exchange Project, where people can buy and sell funds, information, and technology as well as cryptocurrency through the Ruby Exchange.

The Ruby Exchange is the platform with transparency, expandable and unbreakable functions. Moreover, Ruby will create the ecosystem of its own.

This paper explains the Ruby exchange's fundamental features and merits and summarizes the visions of Ruby exchange. It describes what the Ruby exchange platform is and how it delivers value to its customers.

It then outlines plans for introducing critical new additions to the service with crowdsale allocated funds.

Please kindly be informed that more detailed information will be available on Wiki.

Thank you for joining us on this journey.

Please understand that we can not disclose all the information on this light paper, to keep highly confidential information about developing the platform.
